Jack would rather stay at sea than fix the mistakes of his grandfather, the late Earl of Stansworth. the communities of the Cape Flats. Working during the late 1980s, Ledochowski highlights the vibrant cultures of the area. "Cape Flats" refers to the vast stretch of exposed sandy wetlands that lie north of Table Mountain and which now forms a large part of the metropolitan region of Cape Town. Racked by the harsh south-easter and frequently flooded in winter, the Cape Flats is highly unsuitable for residential purposes. But today it has become home to close on a million people. It was here that the apartheid government forcefully removed and restricted the 'non white' population of Cape Town under the Group Areas Act. The creation of the 'Townships', defined by the Oxford Dictionary as "planned urban settlements of Black Africans or Coloreds", represented apartheid's attempt to plan, control, and regulate the lives of the Black majority. Far from being simply art-for-art's sake, much of this creativity is essentially functional and inextricably linked to the social fabric of the townships. For example, a decorative mural is on a wall that holds up a house; an artistic shebeen sign points people to a place of social activity; a display of religious paraphernalia provides the setting for a "home church". This documentary project was in no way an attempt at appropriating cultural artifacts from the townships. The creativity explored here does not offer any catalogue of township art available in the city's art galleries or craft markets, nor should it be read as an itinerary for an authentic township tour. It is rather an attempt to respectfully reveal aspects of our township culture that have hitherto remained largely hidden as peoples' protected spaces.

Life on some of the most attractive Caribbean islands isn't as glamorous as visitors would perceive. For young girls growing up in many areas of the Caribbean, life is a constant struggle with little hope of advancement or success. Such is the story of Marcia and her rise from an impoverished schoolgirl living with her grandparents to dating one of the richest and most eligible bachelors on her island. Follow along on a moving journey as Marcia details her family life, or lack thereof, educational opportunities, the adventures in coming of age, and how drug dealers and illegal activities are revered as successful in her community. Follow her plans for a better life and the story of how she met her first true love. A truly enlightening journey into the status of young women in the Caribbean, and the methods many take to live the life of their dreams and fulfill educational desires with very little support.

Early feminist author Charlotte Perkins Gilman was a pioneer not only in the realm of women's fiction, but also in a remarkable array of other ventures, including publishing, journalism, sociological research, and social reform advocacy. Like many of her works, including the gripping and oft-anthologized tale "The Yellow Wallpaper," the novel What Diantha Did deals with the challenges facing women in nineteenth-century society. In this novel, the protagonist solves the conflict between women's household duties and the financial imperative to work outside the home by opening a somewhat unusual boarding house.

express it in words. But one decision threatens to break down the world that Lilly has tried so hard to integrate into and she must figure out if the relationship can survive if they are apart.

In the early 1970's Jim Lawrence unplugged from his well-fed, well-bred urban background, rejected the main staves of the American dream and wandered into the wilderness of adventure in search of a meaningful life. Callused Hands Hungry Heart is a journey across the working landscape of the country, from logging forests in the great Northwest, to commercial fishing and relentless hours in fish canneries; from life in a remote Aleutian island to hopping freights across the country. This book celebrates the romance, adventure, pitfalls and perseverance of a life on the bumpy road less traveled.
